DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

The house overlooks Stafford Road from a hill, thus, it faces the southeast. It is definitely Victorian in nature, being an L-shape with the principal leg paralleling the road. The main leg measures three bays by two, while the wing is two by one. The walls are made of bevelled frame, built upon a high stone foundation. All of the regular windows are simple 1 X 1's, with the exception of floor-length 2 X 2 X 2's along the southern aspect. A prominent Victorian gable, complete with a 2 X 2 opening, crowns the center of the roof of the northern facade. A very unique feature is the unusual attic windows; twin triangular lattice panes exist on all three extremes of the L-shaped building at the gable level. The roof is a slate gable-flank with very plain eaves. One door with a transom is on the southern facade, while another is on the northeast side of the wing. Three very eccentric brick chimneys, sculpted in a concave profile, are located on the inside-ends of each extreme of the house. Three cellar windows are on the eastern and western sides of the building, and the cellar entrance is also emplaced on the western aspect. A three-bay shed porch with bannister columns protects the main doorway and the other portal is enclosed by a finished-over porch.

The outbuildings

Most of the older ancillary structures seem to have been built at the same time. The date "1880" is inscribed in the mortar of the barn floor. The barn itself is in three parts, with a causeway leading from the north. It is constructed of wood siding with the interior joints connected by bolts and iron plates. The jousts are pegged. A high stone foundation is present, as the lower level is apparently used for the storage of livestock and fodder. The roof is gable-flank. Below the barn is the milkhouse and toolshed, typified by the same kind of construction. Directly behind the house, the outbuildings are of more recent vintage, though they do blend well with the older ones.

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

This farm is adjacent to a much older one, with stone buildings, that was once owned by Duckett and Henry Stump as early as 1805. They also farmed this tract, but it not become a full-fledged farm until much later in the 1800's. The land records record the earliest owner as being one John Wilson, who in 1813 conveyed the property to Duckett Stump. The 1783 Tax List does mention a Samuel Wilson as possessing a tract called Good Neighborhood in this immediate area. The Stumps and the Holloways are related and the property has been owned by them for nearly 170 years. The 1878 Martenet Map shows the owner of the farm to be Samuel Stump Holloway. The unique features of the Victorian home and the presence of an original group of farm buildings make this place more than just a run-of-the-mill farm.
